DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-18, 23, 24, drawn to a method for making microspheres, classified in class 427, subclass 212.
- II. Claims 19-22, drawn to a system for delivering a therapeutic agent to tissue, classified in class 424, subclass 489.
- III. Claims 25-36, drawn to microspheres, classified in class 424, subclass 489.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and II are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). In the instant case microspheres can be made in several ways, as is discussed by applicant in the specification (see page 4). Applicant teaches that microspheres can be made through encapsulation using the atomization-freeze process, as well as the method described in "Delivering Neuroactive Molecules from Biodegradable Microspheres for Application in Central Nervous System Disorders." In the latter case, the microspheres are formed by dispersing the active in a solvent, forming an emulsion, evaporating off the solvent, and freeze drying the result. This reiterates the statement that microspheres can be formed in ways other than the one claimed by applicant. Although applicant has drafted the composition claims to depend from the method of making claims, this is insignificant, the patentability of product by process claims is based on the product itself, not the process.

Inventions I and III are related as process of making and product made. The inventions are distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) that the process as claimed can be used to make other and materially different product or (2) that the product as claimed can be made by another and materially different process (MPEP § 806.05(f)). These inventions relate in the same manner as I and II discussed above.

Inventions II and III are distinct as invention II (the system) requires the presence of a dispenser, and invention III is the microspheres alone.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group I is not required for Group II or Group III, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
